

MindMasters Academy

Free math and chess training for North South Foundation classrooms

MindMasters Academy turns NSF contest preparation into a game students ask to play. It combines the complete AMC and AIME archives with a full chess curriculum in one free app that runs on any phone, tablet, Chromebook or laptop a family already owns. No installation, no subscription, no ads, and it works entirely offline.

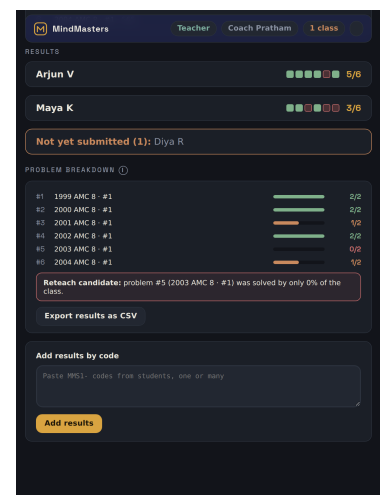

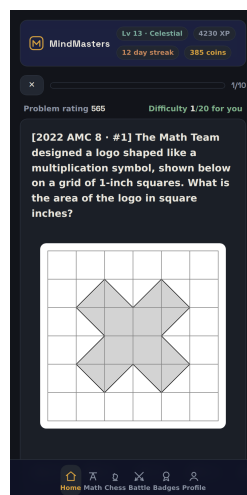

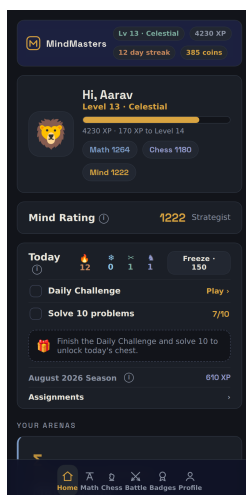

13,585 real math problems	13,531 chess puzzles	191 official practice tests	$0 for schools and families
1999–2025 every AMC 8	2000–2025 every AMC 10 and 12	1983–2025 every AIME	100% official answer keys

Built to make students come back

Every problem is served adaptively against the student's own rating, so practice always sits at the edge of their ability. A daily checklist unlocks a mystery treasure chest, streaks and monthly seasons reward consistency, and coins buy collectible characters students genuinely care about. Full timed practice tests use official scoring, missed problems return automatically through spaced review, and every solved contest problem links straight to its full solution on the AoPS wiki.

Built for coaches to run a class

Teachers get their own accounts with classes, a live roster showing who trained and who has gone quiet, one-tap weekly assignments with fresh problems each week, and per-problem analytics that flag exactly which question to reteach. Results export to CSV, a one-tap class report prints for parents, and coaches can reward the class with bonus codes that arrive as treasure chests. An optional free Class Cloud adds live leaderboards and automatic assignment delivery.

Student home with the daily checklist · an adaptive AMC problem · the coach's per-problem class analytics

Adopting it takes one link

The whole app is a single web page. Students open the class link, create an account in thirty seconds, and add it to their home screen like any app. A pilot with one NSF class needs nothing from the organization beyond a coach willing to try it for two weeks.
